

The Dual Face of Chinese Nationalism
in the Xi Jinping Era:
*Conflict and Peace in Xinjiang

Vita Golod

is a Ukrainian scholar born in Kyiv. She received her education at the Institute of International Relations at Taras Shevchenko National University of Kyiv and earned her Ph.D. at the Institute of World Economy and International Relations of the National Academy of Sciences of Ukraine. She also spent a year at the Mandarin Training Center at Taiwan Normal University and served the Chair of the Board of the Ukrainian Association of Sinologists (2019–2024).

Currently, she is a Fellow at the A. Yu. Krymskyi Institute of Oriental Studies, National Academy of Sciences of Ukraine, Visiting Adjunct Instructor at University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, a co-editor of the “Ukraine-China” journal, and a Co-founder of the Ukrainian Platform for Contemporary China. Fluent in Chinese and English, Vita has published numerous articles in scholarly journals and international media outlets.

This research was initiated by the A. Yu. Krymskyi Institute of Oriental Studies, National Academy of Sciences of Ukraine in 2021, as a part of the “World Islam” project. It represents the first research on Uyghurs conducted by a Ukrainian scholar.

CONTENTS

List of Abbreviations	1
List of Illustrations	2
List of Tables	4
List of Figures	5
Acknowledgments	6
Maps.....	8
Introduction	11
Chapter I Chinese Nationalism in Contemporary China	39
Chapter II Sinicization as State-Led Nation Engineering	91
Chapter III Xinjiang as Showcase of the Chinese Dream	143
Chapter IV Uyghur Identity in Kashgar	205
Chapter V Conflict Resolution and Peace Scenarios in Xinjiang	279
Afterword	325
Annexes	330
Notes	358
Bibliography	395

LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS

- BRI: Belt and Road Initiative
CCP: Chinese Communist Party
CIA: China Islamic Association
CPEC: China-Pakistan Economic Corridor
CR Express: China-Europe Railway Express
ETIM: East Turkestan Islamic Movement
NBS: National Bureau of Statistics
GDP: Gross Domestic Product
GMD: Guomindang
GWoT: Global War on Terror
PLA: People's Liberation Army
PRC: People's Republic of China
SCO: Shanghai Cooperation Organization
U.S.A.: United States of America
XPCC: Xinjiang Production and Construction Corps
XUAR: Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS

Maps

- | | |
|------------------------------|----|
| 1. Political map of China | 8 |
| 2. Ethnicity map of Xinjiang | 8 |
| 3. Road map of Xinjiang | 9 |
| 4. Xinjiang satellite map | 10 |

Photographs *

- | | |
|--|-----|
| 1. Wall display inside the Kashgar Historical Museum
“Chinese People are Like Brothers and Sisters.” | 50 |
| 2. Niujie Mosque in Beijing, outside (left) and inside
(right) | 133 |
| 3. Exhibition panel presents Kashgar and Xinjiang as part of the BRI | 161 |
| 4. China’s custom border point with Tajikistan (left);
Karakorum highway towards Pakistan border (right) | 170 |
| 5. The Map “Silk Road Culture and Ethnic Customs International Tourism Destination” (left), and the exhibition panel promotes Hotan (in southern Xinjiang) as “A Famous Cultural and Tourism City
in Kunlun Oasis” (right) | 179 |
| 6. The entrance gate to the Kashgar Pilot Free Trade Zone | 191 |

7. Uyghur artisans (left), Uyghur tailor (right)	198
8. Kashgar airport and view from 25th floor to Kashgar city (left) and Kunlun Mountains (right)	207
9. A tourist attraction in Kashgar Prefecture (left) and an antiquarian shop in Kashgar's Old City (right)	225
10. Streets of Kashgar's Old City	234
11. Scenes from Jiefang North Road	238
12. Permit to visit Tashkurgan	244
13. Rumi Art Space in Kashgar	247
14. A street scene in Kashgar featuring everyday clothing worn by Uyghurs (left); Uyghur traditional clothing displayed in a cultural exhibition (right).	249
15. Uyghur men on the streets of Kashgar	250
16. Xinhua store in Kashgar	258
17. Id Kah Mosque outside (left) and inside, gathering the tourists (right).	261
18. Afaq Khoja Mausoleum (left) and tombs (right).	263
19. "Qianlong and the Fragrant Concubine" statue (left) and stone plaque at the entrance to Xiao Fei park (right).	265
20. Uyghur women in Kashgar	268
21. A butcher shop (left) and the sale of naan on a street of Kashgar (right)	270
22. Uyghur dutar selling on a street of Kashgar Old City (left), the image from Kashgar historical museum: how the Chinese authority represents Uyghurs (right).	273

* All photographs were taken by the author during a trip to Kashgar Prefecture in May 2024.

LIST OF TABLES

1. Comparative analysis between Five-Year Work Plan (2018–2022) and Five-Year Work Plan (2023–2027)	119
2. Relative weights of Xinjiang's economic importance factors	158
3. Comparative analysis of assimilation among Uyghurs and other Chinese minorities (Muslim and Non-Muslim)	291
4. Chinese Muslim population and proportion of each ethnic group nationwide	330
5. Uyghur population by region and gender	331
6. Uyghur population by age group and gender	333
7. The case study: social life and business of the Uyghurs in Kashgar	334
8. Mineral resources of Xinjiang by periodic classification and strategic function	348

LIST OF FIGURES

1. Frequency of key ideological themes in Xi Jinping's speeches (2013–2024)	62
2. Governance architecture of the Sinicization of Islam in China	124
3. GDP of Xinjiang	149
4. GDP by regions in Xinjiang	150
5. Ethnic minority population growth in Xinjiang	181
6. The level of education of the Uyghur population	183
7. Comparative patterns of assimilation and economic integration among selected Chinese ethnic minorities (12-factor framework)	295
8. Survey results reflecting expert opinions on likely trajectories for Xinjiang's political future	307

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This book would not have been possible without the support of many individuals. First, I wish to express my sincere gratitude to Prof. Victor Kiktenko for his continuous professional support since we first met in the early 2000s. His guidance, advice, and encouragement have given me energy, inspired curiosity, and strengthened my motivation to pursue a career in China studies. I am also grateful to Dr. Danilo Radivilov, who at the time served as Head of the Modern Department at the A. Krymskyi Institute of Oriental Studies, NAS of Ukraine, for his extensive and constructive comments and advice on my research.

This project was initially envisioned as part of a co-authored monograph on World Islam. However, my meeting with Prof. Robin Visser following my field trip to Xinjiang convinced me that this research had the potential to stand as a book in its own right. I embraced the challenge, and I remain grateful for that pivotal moment.

I would like to extend special thanks to Prof. Jo Jin-Jong and Dr. Kevin Fogg, who welcomed me as a visiting scholar at the Carolina Asia Center from 2023 to 2025. The academic environment and institutional support at University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill (UNC) greatly facilitated the development and completion of my research. I am likewise indebted to Prof. Graeme Robertson and Adnan Džumhur of the Center for Slavic, Eurasian, and East European Studies at UNC, as well as to Prof. Navin Bapat and Prof. Stephen Gent for supporting my professional growth during my time at UNC.

I am grateful for every conversation—in the United States, Europe, Ukraine, and, of course, China—that helped illuminate different dimensions of this complex subject. The names of three interlocutors mentioned in this book are pseudonyms: Niyaz, a Uyghur who made an invaluable contribution to my research but wished to remain anonymous; Grace, an American who experienced the escalation of tensions in Xinjiang in 2016; and Lu, a Han Chinese businessman who had recently established production in Bachu. I will remember each exchange, as every encounter became part of my nearly three-year research journey.

I also thank all peer reviewers for their thoughtful feedback—both supportive and critical—as well as the editors at several publishing houses who took the time to read my manuscript. Their engagement brought me closer to the day this book would finally be published.

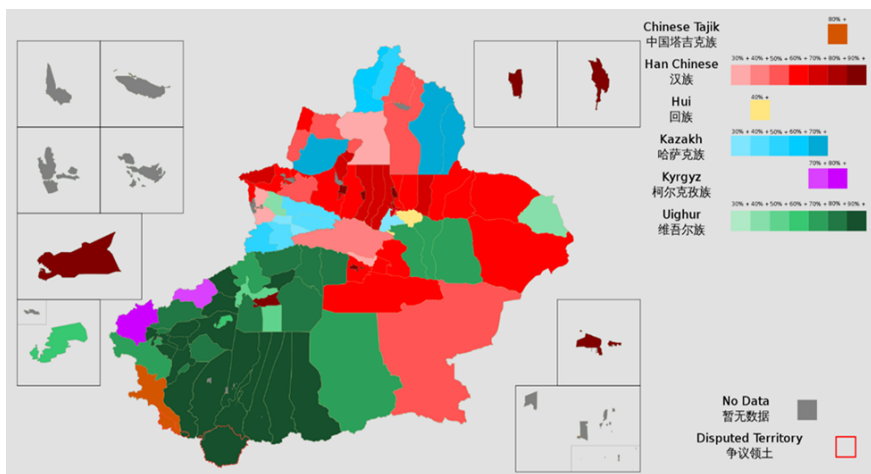

I am deeply appreciative of the support of my family and friends, who refrained from pressing me with questions about when the work would be finished, understanding that this academic project would consume a significant amount of time, effort, and emotional energy.

Finally, I extend my profound gratitude to the Armed Forces of Ukraine, and especially to my brother, who continues to fight for Ukraine's independence.

The Dual Face of Chinese Nationalism in the Xi Jinping Era: Conflict and Peace in Xinjiang

Map 1. Political map of China ¹

Map 2. Ethnic Map of Xinjiang ²